HE HAD NEVER ACCEPTED MONEY FROM [] BUT JOINED A CLUB IN

APPOINTEE OF OCTOBER 28, 1978, BY [] APPOINTEE WAS
THE REPUBLICAN PARTY NOMINEE FOR THE STATE OF OHIO; CAMPAIGN WAS VERY VERBAL. THE APPOINTEE MADE A PRESS RELEASE, WHICH CONCERNED MR. [] ACTIVITY INVOLVING A DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED CHARGE WAS MENTIONED, THUS MR. [] FILED A LIBEL SUIT.

b6
b7c

A REVIEW OF THE SUIT FILED IN THE OHIO SUPREME COURT
REFLECTS THE APPOINTEE FILED THE SUIT BASED ON EVENTS OF THE 1972 SENATORIAL ELECTIONS, IN WHICH THE APPOINTEE FAILED TO FILE A CAMPAIGN EXPENSE REPORT WITHIN THE REQUIRED 45 DAY TIME LIMIT. UNDER OHIO REVISED CODES, THE APPOINTEE WAS AUTOMATICALLY SUSPENDED FROM SEEKING PUBLIC OFFICE IN THE STATE OF OHIO FOR A PERIOD OF FIVE YEARS.

THE APPOINTEE CLAIMED IN THE SUIT THAT THE OHIO REVISED CODE WAS GROSSLY UNREASONABLE AND ARBITRARY, DENYING THE

APPOINTEE AND VOTERS THE RIGHT OF POLITICAL EXPRESSION AND THAT THE REVISED CODE WAS UNCONSTITUTIONAL, VIOLATING THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION.

THE OHIO SUPREME COURT RULED AGAINST THE APPOINTEE, STATING THE LAWS WERE CONSTITUTIONAL AND THE PENALTY IMPOSED WAS WITHIN THE LEGISLATORS POWER.

A REVIEW OF THE SUIT FILED IN U.S. DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF OHIO, EASTERN DISTRICT, REFLECTS THE APPOINTEE REQUESTED THE COURT TO JUDGE THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF OHIO REVISED CODES AND THE APPOINTEE BEING SUSPENDED FROM SEEKING PUBLIC OFFICE.

A THREE JUDGE PANEL JUDGED AGAINST THE APPOINTEE, INDICATING THAT THE U.S. CONSTITUTION EMPOWERS THE STATES TO LEGISLATE THEIR OWN LAWS AND PENALTIES SO LONG AS THEY ARE NOT IN CONFLICT WITH THE U.S. CONSTITUTION; THE LAWS IN QUESTION WERE HELD CONSTITUTIONAL.

ON MARCH 8, 1974, A BILL WAS INTRODUCED AND PASSED BY THE OHIO LEGISLATURE AMENDING THE OHIO REVISED CODES CONCERNING CAMPAIGN FINANCE EXPENSES. THE LAW WAS REVISED TO LIMIT THE PENALTY TO ONE YEAR AND NULIFIED THE FIVE YEAR PENALTY AGAINST

THE APPOINTEE. THE APPOINTEE WAS ABLE TO SEEK REELECTION IN 1976.

References and Close Personal Associates

On October 26, 1981, [redacted] Acting Assistant Secretary for Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture, advised Special Agent [redacted] that he has known the appointee Donald "Buz" Lukens, socially and professionally since the Fall of 1965. At that time, Lukens was doing work for Congressman Clarence Brown, Senior, and learned that a redistricting was taking place in his home town area. He decided to run for the Congressional seat and [redacted] worked as his campaign manager. Lukens was elected to the Congressional seat, bringing [redacted] to Washington, D.C. (WDC), as his Administrative Aide. He remained with the appointee through his unsuccessful campaign for Governor of Ohio in 1970. He has maintained contact with the appointee since that time. He participated in the appointee's wedding, has had him to dinner here in WDC on his business trips, and visited him at his residence in Ohio. He described the appointee as unscrupulously honest, patriotic, trustworthy, dedicated, trustful of people, no security risk, and extremely hardworking. He believes him to be of impeccable character, have reputable associates, and he is well respected by all that have had contact with him. The only thing that could be considered unfavorable is that he was questioned by the Congressional Korea-Gate Committee regarding a possible $500 political donation. The committee exonerated the appointee from any wrongdoing, but believes the questioning hurt his campaign for Governor of Ohio. He stated that Lukens is naive, when it comes to trusting people. He believes in their statements until shown otherwise and then will doubt that individuals word again. He highly recommended him for a position of trust and confidence with the government. He concluded by stating that he would work with or for him again. b6 b7C

On October 29, 1981, [redacted] Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, advised that he has known Donald Lukens since 1966 when Lukens was a congressman from Ohio. friendly, moral, upright, straightforward, candid, frank, and of unquestionable integrity. Lukens is effective in working with people, has a good sense of organization and will follow projects to a total completion. There is nothing derogatory regarding his character, associates, reputation or loyalty. Schweiker stated that he had offered the appointee a position at Health and Human Services, but Lukens declined. Ladies and Gentlemen of the Press:

This morning the following testimony by Tongsun Park took place in front of the U. S. House Ethics Committee:

Q. "To Mr. Donald Lukens. In a-----

Park. "I didn't hear you."

Q. L-U-K-E-N-S

P. Lukens

Q. Yes, Sir, Yes

P. Donald Lukens, Right.

Q. Yes. Do you remember making a contribution to him at all?

P. "What I testified that there's no record or ledger showing that I ever made any contributions. But knowing my close knit relationship with him, I concluded that I must have made some contributions in the neighborhood of at least two-three hundred dollars while he was in Congress."

Q. But what we have asked about and what we seem to have was $500.00 for one year and $500.00 another year. 1968--first time. 1970 the second time. That could be correct?

P. "Yes."

Q. Alright, sir.

His testimony is simply--not true. He gave me no money - at all - ever.

Mr. Park testified he gave money to about 33 Congressmen. In his testimony he said he had records for nearly all. In no case was Mr. Park's testimony so hazy and uncertain as that dealing with me.

This hazy and uncertain charge is completely unfair to me and those that believe in me. When one is in public life--how can he deal with it--an untruth?

Let's look at this record.

Mr. Park said he had no record. I do have records, from my 1968 Congressional campaign and from my 1970 Gubernatorial campaign. My records have been rechecked and they reveal that no contribution was made by Mr. Park to either campaign.

His testimony is simply not true.

Next. I did run for Congress in 1968. However, in 1970 I ran only in the Republican Primary. I did not run for Congress in 1970. It is my understanding that Park contributed - with one exception in Louisiana - to Congressional campaigns and that was the thrust of his testimony today - testimony that was not true.

Last Wednesday, an investigator came to Columbus to interview me regarding Mr. Park's testimony behind closed doors. I told him this testimony was not true. I called the Deputy Chief Counsel of the Committee and was advised that Mr. Park's testimony on a contribution to me was very "hazy."

I was confronted with this problem last Wednesday. How does a person in public life deal with an untrue charge? It's denied in public--at a Press Conference--and this is what I'm doing.

Mr. Park gave me no money for my 1968 campaign--he gave me no money for my 1970 campaign. He gave me no money for any campaign.

But in the current political mood of this country--- that's not enough. I discussed this with my closest friends. They believe Mr. Park's hazy testimony was not true. That wasn't enough. I insisted upon a polygraph-lie detector test--on this matter, to once and for all clear the matter up for my friends, my supporters, the public and the Press.

I know of no other candidate who has taken a lie detector test on this matter--or any other matter.

Last Saturday, a polygraph-lie detector test--was given to me at the offices of Moling & Associates, Inc., in Columbus. The test demonstrated the following:

1. I received no money from Mr. Tongsun Park for my 1968 campaign;
2. I received no money from Mr. Tongusn Park for my 1970 campaign; and
3. I received no money from Mr. Tongsun Park for any campaign.

Again, I have never received money from Tongsun Park.

1113 For instance, I am talking about business payments now.

1114 Mr. Park. I only have a total figure. There is no way I 1115 could compute what I paid to him each year because all the 1116 records are in the hands of the Justice Department.

1117 Mr. Jaworski. So the $96,000 figure covers several years?

1118 Mr. Park. That is correct.

1119 Mr. Jaworski. Mr. Lawrence J. Hogan, 1970, $500?

1120 Mr. Park. In the form of a check; yes.

1121 Mr. Jaworski. Mr. Albert W. Johnson in 1974, a thousand 1122 dollars?

1123 Mr. Park. Yes.

1124 Mr. Jaworski. Check?

1125 Mr. Park. No; in the form of cash.

1126 Mr. Jaworski. To Mr. Thomas E. Kleppe, 1972, $500?

1127 Mr. Park. Yes. I made that contribution in the form of a

1129 Mr. Jaworski. All right, sir.

1130 Mr. Donald Lukens.

1132 Mr. Jaworski. L-u-k-e-n-s.

1133 Mr. Park. Lukens??

1134 Mr. Jaworski. Do you remember making a contribution to 1135 him?

1136 Mr. Park. When I testified, there were no records or 1137 ledgers showing I made a contribution but knowing my close
1138 relationship I concluded I must have made some contributions
1139 in the neighborhood of at least two or three hundred dollars
1140 while he was in Congress.

1141 Mr. Jaworski. What we have asked about and what we seem 1142 to have is $500 for one year and $500 for another year;
1143 1978, the first time and 1970, the second time. That could 1144 be correct?

1145 Mr. Park. Yes.

1146 Mr. Jaworski. Then Spark Matsunaga, M-a-t-s-u-n-a-g-a.

1147 Mr. Park. Right.

1148 Mr. Jaworski. 1975, $500.

1149 Mr. Park. Yes.

701 Mr. Quillen is recognized for five minutes.

702 Mr. Quillen. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

703 Mr. Park, I noticed a TV special last evening when Mr.

704 Passman denied out of his own mouth that he had ever

05 received any contributions from you. I wonder in that frame

06 of mind what he had in mind or what your testimony might 07 reveal in that regard?

8 Mr. Park. Well, I think it is hard for anybody to admit

9 certain things that they really felt that it was nothing they should be proud of, and I watched that program myself, so, Mr. Quillen, I am aware of what you are talking about and I still like the person. I would be not doing justice to myself if I tell you otherwise, and I think many of his friends, including my own counsel, tried to advise him the best thing for all of us is for him to come forward and admit what he did with me, and he simply refused; and I am still hoping that it will be soon that he will come to his own senses and come forward and admit the contributions that he did receive from me.

2720 Mr. Quillen. I don't know when that was found. It could 2721 have been prior to the indictment?

2722 Mr. Park. I think I was under the impression that it was 2723 much before, prior to the indictment, yes.

2724 Mr. Quillen. And you say what you gave former member 2725 Passman is correct?

2726 Mr. Park. Oh, yes, yes.

2727 Mr. Quillen. The chief counsel referred to Mr. Lukens as 2728 Congressman Lukens. Was he a congressman at the time of 2729 your contribution?

2730 Mr. Park. Buz Lukens?

2731 Mr. Quillen. Yes.

2732 Mr. Park. Yes.

2733 Mr. Quillen. What date was that?

2734 Mr. Park. I believe he was in Congress for only two 35 terms, '68 and '70, if my memory is correct.

36 Mr. Quillen. Your contribution was in '70?

37 Mr. Park. Either '68, '70, or '70 or '72. I am not 38 sure.

Honorable Donald E. Lukens

Dear Mr. Lukens:

As you know, this Committee is conducting an investigation (under H. Res. 252) of alleged activities by the government of South Korea to attempt to influence improperly certain legislators and the legislative process.

Further, as you know, records relating to travel are sometimes fragmented and exist in widely scattered places.

In order to provide us with background information on who has visited Korea in an official capacity in the last several years, we are asking the senior congressional representative on each of these trips to help provide us this information from any records that you may have or even from your memory.

Accordingly, we would greatly appreciate your advising our Special Staff at the earliest possible opportunity either by letter or by telephone (225-7984) with the names of other Members and family, Members' office staff, committee staff, State Department personnel, Defense Department personnel, the senior escort officer, and any others who accompanied you on the trips of April 1969 and January 24, 1971.

With kind regards.

Dear Mr. [REDACTED]:

On April 1, 1978, Donald "Buz" Lukens voluntarily came to this polygraph suite for a polygraph examination.

The main issue under consideration was whether or not Mr. Lukens was telling the truth when he claimed that he did not receive from [REDACTED] $500.00 in cash or check for his 1968 Congressional Campaign, nor did he receive $500.00 in cash or check from [REDACTED] for his 1970 Republican Primary race for Governor of Ohio.

Before his pre-test interview, Mr. Lukens voluntarily signed two copies of a permission form stating that he was taking the examination of his own free will. One copy of this executed form is enclosed with this report; the other has been incorporated into our case file.

In the polygraph recordings, there were definite indications of truthfulness when Mr. Lukens answered "No" to all five of his pertinent questions, which were:

For your 1968 campaign, did you ever receive from [REDACTED] $500.00 by check?

For your 1968 campaign, did you ever receive from [REDACTED] $500.00 in cash?

For your 1970 campaign, did you ever receive from [REDACTED] $500.00 by check?

b6

For your 1970 campaign, did you ever receive from [REDACTED] $500.00 in cash?

Did [REDACTED] ever donate money to one of your campaigns?

[REDACTED]

April 3, 1978

It is the opinion of the polygraphist, based upon the polygraph examination of Mr. Lukens, that he is telling the truth to his pertinent test questions.

Respectfully submitted,

Dear [Redacted]

I am very sorry that in the original submission to you, I neglected to include the incident involving [Redacted] regarding which I have attached some documents. In essence, [Redacted] concluded that since he had not made any records regarding money that because of our friendship he must have given me something (money for my campaigns). I took a lie-detectector test and came out clean since I have not accepted any illegal money to my knowledge for any of my campaigns at any time. In any event, the attached documents should eliminate any problems with this situation.

I am sorry that I did not include this before. I did not mean to overlook it, but felt it was a closed case item.

Sincerely yours,

Donald E. Lukens
Senator

VINEYARDS. [] QUIT HIS JOB AND WAS TO OPERATE THE VINEYARD FULL TIME, PLUS HE INVESTED MONEY INTO THE VENTURE. THE APPOINTEE WAS TO HANDLE SALES, PLUS SOME MANUAL WORK IN THE VENTURE. [] STATED THE APPOINTEE GAVE LITTLE TIME OR EFFORT TO THE VINEYARD. IN EARLY 1980 THE APPOINTEE ADVISED [] HE NEEDED ABOUT THREE MONTHS OFF TO CAMPAIGN FOR REAGAN. APPOINTEE WAS TO CONTRIBUTE $500 PER MONTH TO THE VINEYARD TO HELP PAY FOR HIRING A REPLACEMENT FOR APPOINTEE. THE THREE MONTHS CONTINUED THE REST OF 1980 AND MOST OF 1981. APPOINTEE PAID ONLY $1,000 DURING THIS PERIOD.

AS FINANCES BECAME VERY GRAVE, THE APPOINTEE CONTACTED (FNU) PRESSER OF THE TEAMSTERS UNION IN OHIO. OF THE UNION TO THE APPOINTEE.

[] STATED HE DID NOT KNOW PRESSER, BUT STATED NEWSPAPERS HAD DESCRIBED PRESSER AS CONNECTED WITH THE MOB.

[] 50 PERCENT OF THE VINEYARDS FOR $40,000, TO BE PAID OVER FOUR YEAR PERIOD BEGINNING NOVEMBER 1, 1981. THIS FIRST PAYMENT HAS NOT BEEN MADE.

[] STATED HE IS BITTER OVER THE FINANCIAL PROBLEMS INCURRED BY HIM WHILE IN PARTNERSHIP WITH THE APPOINTEE AND HIS COMMENTS CONCERNING THE APPOINTEE SHOULD BE WEIGHED ACCORDINGLY.

[] STATED HE CONSIDERS HIS FRIENDSHIP TO STILL EXIST WITH THE APPOINTEE AND HAS TOLD THE APPOINTEE OF HIS DISAPPROVAL OF HIS ACTIONS IN THE PAST.

[] ADVISED APPOINTEE IS A TERRIBLE BUSINESSMAN.

[] STATED THE APPOINTEE IS AN EXCELLENT SALESMAN OR PUBLIC RELATIONS MAN.

[] STATED HE BELIEVED APPOINTEE WOULD BE LOYAL TO THE U.S. IF APPOINTEE BELIEVED SOME ACTION OR INFORMATION

[] OFFERED AN EXAMPLE OF [] BEING FRONT MAN FOR A FOREIGN GOVERNMENT ATTEMPTING TO SELL OIL IN THIS COUNTRY.

[] STATED APPOINTEE OWED HIM $40,000 AND HE BELIEVES APPOINTEE OWES LARGE SUMS OF MONEY TO THE WAYNESVILLE NATIONAL BANK, WAYNESVILLE, OHIO, AND TO LEBANON PRODUCTION CREDIT ASSOCIATION, LEBANON, OHIO. [] STATED THESE DEBTS COULD CAUSE APPOINTEE PROBLEMS IN MAKING MORAL DECISIONS INVOLVING A GAIN OF MONEY TO THE APPOINTEE. Re: DONALD E. LUKENS
ALSO KNOWN AS "BUZ" LUKENS
SPECIAL INQUIRY

The White House has requested a background investigation of Lukens, former U.S. Congressman from Ohio, who was appointed to the President's Export Council. During investigation at Washington, D. C. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] was interviewed. He requested and was granted confidentiality, and advised that several years ago Lukens, who was then campaigning for the Ohio State Senate, was associating with unnamed persons who might have organized crime connections. A query was made of the Organized Crime Informations System which revealed Lukens has been entered therein by the New York Office, having been overheard, on a court ordered wire tap [REDACTED]

[REDACTED], an associate of a member of the Bonanno Family in New York. Lukens is not a subject and no indication of wrongdoing exists at this time. Lukens also has business dealings with the Teamsters Union and Jackie Presser, President of the Ohio Teamsters. Presser is alleged to have Organized Crime connections. [REDACTED]

New York is forwarding verbatim transcripts of conversations. Informants in Cleveland and Cincinnati being contacted. There is no indication that Lukens' contacts with [REDACTED] or the Teamsters are other than for legitimate business. Investigation continuing.

EMPLOYMENT

Mr. [REDACTED] Four Winds International, Incorporated, 5415 Backlick Road, Springfield, Virginia, advised SA [REDACTED] on November 16, 1981, he first became acquainted with appointee in January or February, 1981, when appointee was hired as a Vice-President of this company. Their association has been mainly professional, both representing the company, and from the brief time Mr. [REDACTED] has known appointee, he has formed the opinion appointee is a person of high character and good reputation. He has no reason to question the loyalty of appointee, and would recommend appointee very highly for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government. (b6, b7C)

REFERENCE

Lieutenant Colonel [] United States Air Force, Operations and Plans Division, Office of the Chief of Air Force Reserve, Pentagon, advised SA [] telephonically on October 26, 1981, he has been a personal friend, a professional associate and at one time, an employee of appointee since 1949. Colonel [] and appointee attended the same high school in Ohio, entered the United States Air Force, and when appointee was elected to the United States Congress in 1967, Colonel [] worked as an aide for the succeeding four years. Personal contact has been somewhat limited recently, but they have maintained telephonic and written contact.

Colonel [] has found appointee to be a person of character which is above reproach; to enjoy an excellent reputation in every aspect; and to be a solid United States citizen. At no time has there ever been anything of a derogatory nature associated with appointee, his family or any activity in which he has been engaged.

He would highly recommend appointee for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government. Colonel [] would provide the recommendation without any qualification or reservation.

CREDIT CHECK

On October 23, 1981, SC [] caused a search to be made of the files of the Credit Bureau of Prince William County, Incorporated, Post Office Box 232, Manassas, Virginia, which covers the Washington Metropolitan area, and was advised the files contained no derogatory record regarding appointee.

It is to be noted that at all times an indefinite number of unidentified records are out of file and an accurate search cannot be made.

Election board reviewing Reagan trip with con man

By Joseph P. Shapiro
Kentucky Post Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Attorneys for Ronald Reagan have asked the Federal Election Commission to dismiss a complaint by a Washington attorney that the presidential candidate took illegal corporate campaign contributions in 1975 from Newport con man Lester Lee.

Loren Smith, chief legal counsel for the Reagan campaign, said his response to the FEC argued that Reagan was not a declared presidential candidate at the time of his September 26, 1975 swing from Memphis to Lexington, Evansville, Dayton and Chicago on a jet rented by Lee.

And Smith said Reagan's appearance in Kentucky was for a party fundraiser and not for his own campaign. Reagan did not formally announce his candidacy until nearly two months later, he said.

Status of the complaint is questionable because the three-year statute of limitations has already expired on the alleged offense.

Washington labor attorney Paul Levy last month asked the election commission to seek civil or criminal sanctions against Reagan for failure to report the free plane transportation as an in-kind corporate campaign contribution.

In his complaint, Levy included letters from the Citizens for Reagan committee dated prior to September 26.

The FEC has already ruled that not until November 1975 was Reagan an official presidential candidate required to report contributions, Smith said.

Levy made his complaint after reading an article in The Kentucky Post article in June that detailed Reagan's trip with Lee, a reputed underworld hit man who was slain in a Newport adult bookstore in 1978.

The article was part of a 17-part series, The Coal Connection, which documented underworld involvement in the coal industry.

Lee, then president of the Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky, Inc., paid a $3,324 rental fee for use of a private jet to fly Reagan and his supporters on the four-state campaign swing.

Coal series sparks request for probe

By Tom Loftus
Kentucky Post Staff Writer

Ohio Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson has asked the Ohio State Ethics Committee to investigate the possibility that Ohio State Sen. Donald E. (Buz) Lukens received improper campaign contributions.

The possible contributions involve Lukens' relationship with The Shelley Co., a New Albany, Ohio, public relations firm, and Lukens' use of an airplane to fly Lukens and Ronald Reagan to several fund-raisers in 1975.

Ferguson said in a letter to Ohio Senate leaders Friday that he became aware of the possible improprieties from a series of articles published in The Kentucky Post this month titled "The Coal Connection."

Ferguson sent copies of the first 15 articles of the series with his letters to Ohio Senate President Oliver Ocasio, Senate Minority Leader Paul Gillmor, and Sen. Marigene Vallquette, chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee.

The series by Staff Writers Gary Webb and Tom Scheffey detailed methods of swindlers and con men drawn to the coal industry in the 1970s. Much of the series centered on exploits of Lester Lee, a convicted rapist and suspected hit man who was once on the FBI's Ten-Most-Wanted list.

Lee, president of Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky Inc., was shot and killed on Jan. 7, 1978, in an adult bookstore in Newport.

In his letter, Ferguson questioned the propriety of Lukens' contact with Lee through the Shelley

Co. and the September, 1975, plane trip with Reagan.

The articles revealed Lee rented a jet to take Reagan and Lukens on a campaign swing to Evansville, Ind., Dayton, Ohio, and Chicago.

Lukens said he thought the plane trips were for Reagan's benefit. But the Reagan camp countered that the entire trip was for Lukens' state senate reelection campaign. Neither Lukens nor Reagan reported the trip as a campaign contribution.

The series also reported that Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky made $28,805 in payments to the Shelley Co., supposedly for public relations work. Lukens, a partner in the Shelley Co., denied receiving any payments from Hy-Test and said the Shelley Co. did no public relations work for Hy-Test.

In his letter, Ferguson described the free plane trip as "a possible violation of state and federal campaign financing laws prohibiting corporate gifts."

Regarding Hy-Test payments to the Shelley Co., Ferguson said: "None of Sen. Lukens' disclosure statements filed with the Ohio Senate Ethics Committee since April, 1975, contain any information regarding the Shelley Co."

Ferguson concluded the letter stating: "It appears to me that the allegations contained in the series should be considered by the Ohio Senate Ethics Committee, the Ohio Elections Commission and the Federal Elections Commission."

Lukens could not be reached for comment this morning.

Spokesmen for the three Ohio Senate leaders said this morning they have received the letter but could not react to the request until they had read the articles.

Lukens, 49, of Middletown, is a former two-term U.S. Representative who represents the Ohio Senate's Fourth District. He is chairman of Reagan's campaign in Ohio.

Lee takes Hy-Test for a ride — all the way down

Copyright 1980, The Kentucky Post

By Gary Webb
and Thomas Scheffey,
Kentucky Post Staff Writers

Lester Lee piloted Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky Inc. into the ground, but they went first class all the way down.

Lee, by the summer of 1975, was a fat, bulldog-faced man. Prison denim and handcuffs had given way to garish leisure suits and gold chains.

A year and a half earlier, Lee had been earning $10 a month as a clerk in the Terre Haute, Ind., federal prison farm office. Now, he was driving a purple Lincoln Continental Mark IV and making $70,000 a year as Hy-Test's president.

Ray Cumberledge, assistant registrar at the University of Kentucky before he met Lee, had become Hy-Test's vice-president at a salary of $50,000.

Hy-Test leased a sleek $1800-a-month suite of offices on Lexington's Waller Avenue and outfitted it with $12,000 worth of furniture. Across the street, the company had a $200-a-month apartment, complete with a color TV and a king-sized bed.

Lee hired a staff of six secretaries, a receptionist and a switchboard operator. Lee had his own private secretary. Hy-Test leased a brand new fleet of cars and trucks.

Then Lester Lee wanted to buy himself an airplane.

"We had absolutely no money coming in, no prospect of any immediate money, and Lee wanted an airplane," Hy-Test's office manager at the time, Fred J. Eilers Jr., remembered with a sigh.

And whatever Lee wanted, he got.

"He was president, and you didn't question him. By God, you just didn't question the man," Eilers said.

So Hy-Test bought an airplane. "It was a good-sized plane, seated six, eight maybe. We bought it used and had to have it completely remodeled. I think we paid $300,000 or $400,000 for it," Eilers recalled.

But by early fall, 1975, Lee's partners were beginning to have their doubts about Lee's leadership.

"Even Cumberledge complained about the airplane, and he usually didn't complain about anything," Eilers said.

Cumberledge was also upset about another Lee extravaganza: Hy-Test's financing of a campaign trip for ex-California Gov.

'He had things set up in Curacao. It was going to be a getaway, a place for him to disappear to with all the money.'

Ronald Reagan in September, 1975.

"You bet your life I was angry about that. We were spending this money for who knows what? I couldn't see any direct benefit from it," Cumberledge said.

Lee was running his coal company like he ran his life. Amidst the flamboyance, there was an aura of furtiveness.

"He would never let me see the coal contracts so I could do invoices. It was all very secret. I had no idea what I was paying and Lee kept spending a money," said Eilers, 39, 801 Arlington Rd., Park Hills.

Before August, 1975, Hy-Test didn't have a cent to spend on anything. Banks in Dayton, Ohio, and Lexington, were lending the coal company money on the strength of a $55 million coal contract Hy-Test had with Turkey.

For Hy-Test to get the Turkish coal money, it needed to ship coal to Turkey, take the shipping documents and coal analysis reports to the Winters National Bank in Dayton and present them to the bank's International Department, where the Turks had posted million-dollar letters of credit.

The banker would compare the testing reports to the coal specifications listed in the Turkish contract. If the coal measured up, Hy-Test could immediately receive 90 per cent of the letter of credit.

The remaining 10 per cent would be paid once the Turks inspected the coal themselves and verified it met their specifications.

The first letter of credit — for $1,338,000 — was posted in the Winters Bank on Aug. 6, 1975. The first Turkish freighter, the S.S. Erdemir, sailed from Norfolk, Va. on Sept. 1, 1975, carrying 21,574 tons of coal. Hy-Test withdrew $1,083,000 from the Winters Bank.

A second letter of credit for $1.5 million was posted, and the second ship sailed from Norfolk on Sept. 18. Hy-Test withdrew another $1.25 million.

But according to Cumberledge, those figures were a well-guarded secret. "I was unable to get access to the books to see what was going on. Lee just wouldn't let me look at them. He said everything was fine and that I didn't need to see them," Cumberledge said.

As Hy-Test's second boatload of coal was pulling away from the Norfolk docks, Lee was taking steps to get a passport. But just why a man on parole, whose travel was restricted to eastern Kentucky until 1977, wanted a passport is not exactly clear.

According to Hy-Test officers Ries Hengstmengle and Cumberledge and Hy-Test attorney Richard Vimont, Lee paid Lexington attorney Julius Rather $5000 to get him a passport.

Rather strongly denied he had anything to do with Lee acquiring a passport.

"That's just utterly ridiculous. It's ludicrous. It makes me sound like I used that money to pay somebody off," Rather scoffed. He confirmed, however, that Lee paid him $5000 on Sept. 18, 1975.

The next day, Lee and his fourth wife, Roberta Fleissner Lee, had passport pictures taken at Lafayette Studios in Lexington.

Rather said he couldn't recall what he did to earn the $5000.

The Kentucky Post filed a Freedom of Information Act request with the U.S. Parole Commission in December, 1979, to determine how Lee was able to travel overseas while on parole, but the Commission has refused to release Lee's records.

Lee eventually acquired a passport and used it to fly to Turkey and Romania in mid-October, 1975. His intentions are un-

"He had things set up in Curacao (in the Netherlands Antilles). It was going to be a get-away, in my opinion, a place for him to disappear to with all the money, untouched by federal hands," said Eilers, who later became Hy-Test's bookkeeper.

The company's banking records lend support to Eilers' theory.

Lee began siphoning cash in mid-September, 1975, from Hy-Test's bank account at the Winters Bank in Dayton into the Dutch Antilles bank account of Hy-Test Holding Co. N.V., which had just been formed by a Curacao lawyer named Franciscus A.A. Duynstee. (Duynstee would later incorporate a Caribbean company which the Securities and Exchange Commission is prosecuting on charges of a tax fraud of more than $20 million.)

Lee sent repeated letters to the Winters Bank ordering cash transfers and soon, the three-week-old holding company showed a bank account worth $200,000. Between Sept. 13 and Sept. 23, Lee also wrote checks to himself for $15,000.

The first two coal boats had left for Turkey by Sept. 18. Lee, simply by presenting the shipping documents to the Dayton bank, was suddenly in a position to get his hands on $2.3 million. For Lee, the shipping documents were like so many cashiers checks on the Turkish millions in the Winters Bank.

Lee still hadn't gotten his passport by the time the Erdemir arrived in Turkey, and when lab tests revealed the quality of Hy-Test's product, the Turks were not pleased. The second boatload, they said, was even worse. The coal was unusable.

By the time Lee got his passport in mid-October, relations with the Turkish coal buyers were in jeopardy. Lee picked up his passport in Washington, D.C., and flew to Turkey in an attempt to iron out the problems.

After several days in Turkey, Lee wired Lexington for more money. "He'd run out or blown it or something, and he wanted us to send more. We'd had it with him by then," Eilers said.

Eilers said the Hy-Test bookkeeper, Lee's brother-in-law David Fleissner, was ordered not to send the money. "Then we found out Dave had wired the money after all. A couple thousand dollars," Eilers said.

Cumberledge and Gareth Turner, a Hy-Test board member and then general manager of Dutchess Furniture Co. in Florence, "told Fleissner to get out and never come back."

Eilers took over the books and was alarmed at what he saw. The books, he said, were "miserable, totally indistinguishable. I called Turner and told him what I'd found."

Turner, a friend of Lee's for 10 years, was shocked, Eilers said. "His initial reaction was panic, total panic. He tried personally contacting Lee in Turkey and couldn't get through."

Turner ordered Eilers to Norfolk to pick up the shipping documents from the third freighter, the S.S. Erzurum. In the meantime, Lee called from Bucharest, Rumania, where he was hunting down another coal contract, and Cumberledge said Lee's secretary, Linda Webb, told Lee "something was going on, and he'd better get back here."

Lee phoned his private pilot, a Cuban named Jesus Cuevas, and told him to meet him in New York with the company plane. The race to Norfolk was on.

Eilers said the worried Turner thought Lee would try to get the shipping documents first and cash in on the $1.5 million letter of credit. He was right.

Eilers got to Norfolk on Oct. 22, 1975, and scooped up the valuable shipping documents. And not a moment too soon.

"Lee was in Norfolk the same time I was, looking for the documents. I firmly believe his sole purpose in being there was to get them and take off with the loot," Eilers said.

The letter of credit was cashed and placed in a bank in Lexington. Lee and Fleissner's signatures were removed from the account, and Cumberledge hired attorney Richard Vimont to get rid of Lester Lee.

Lee was called into the Hy-Test board room the morning of Oct. 27, handed a $10,000 check for his company stock and a letter of resignation, which he signed.

D. Cameron Hays, the Lexington attorney who was Lee's parole sponsor and the corporate attorney for Hy-Test, was shown the door also.

"Lee was very calm. He told them if they thought they could find someone who could run the company better, let them try," Hays recalled.

The next day, Hy-Test International, Inc. was incorporated in New Albany, Ohio, with Lee as chairman of the board, Charles Wheeler as president and David Fleissner as secretary-treasurer.

Wheeler, a convicted burglar and armed robber, was already working for Lee through a public relations firm called The Shelley Co. That firm was housed in the Hatch Bldg, 39 E. Main St., New Albany.

At that same address was another Wheeler firm called International Sales and Associated Enterprises, which he operated with his brother Paul, another ex-convict twice sentenced to life in prison for burglary and safe-cracking.

Lee's Hy-Test International set up shop in that same office.

In Lexington, Ray Cumberledge, who replaced Lee as president of Hy-Test of Kentucky, struggled to go on.

"I was nearly scared out of my wits because my wife and I had been threatened by Lester Lee," Cumberledge, now director of planning for the state Justice Department, said.

He said Lee called him and "threatened to make a parking lot out of my house." Cumberledge said he had FBI agents check the Waller Avenue offices for hidden dynamite, and he changed the Hy-Test vice-president Tom Van Hoorn also got violent phone calls from Lee.

"He said things like my house would change to a parking lot if I didn't leave," the young Dutch contractor said. "Then I heard from the FBI that they found a bomb in my car. They said it was better to move out of the country, which I did. I never went back," he said from his home in Rotterdam, Holland.

After setting up the Ohio Hy-Test, Lee flew back to Turkey, apparently to pick up where he'd left off.

On his first trip to Ankara, Lee had signed a letter of commitment guaranteeing the Turks would get a $55 million loan to pay for Hy-Test's coal.

Turkey was in the midst of a currency crisis and if the Hy-Test contract was to continue, the Turks would need a massive dose of American dollars.

Ries Hengstmengle, president of the real Hy-Test International in Curacao, said he and Lee were asked by "the Turkish government if we could arrange a loan, and Lester signed a letter which was, to my mind, impossible! He just signed it without a wink of an eye and said to the Turks: 'Okay, we'll arrange it.' I couldn't believe it."

While Lee was on his second excursion to Turkey, Charles Wheeler was scrambling to locate the $55 million Lee had so freely promised the Turks. He posed the problem to Ohio State Sen. Donald E. (Buz) Lukens, who was a partner with Wheeler in The Shelley Co.

Lukens said he assumed he was still working for Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky and said he didn't know Wheeler and Lee had set up Hy-Test International. But Lukens did know its incorporating attorney, Fred J. Milligan Jr.

"When I ran statewide, I met him a couple of times. He's a big Republican," Lukens said.

Lukens said the third Shelley partner, Columbus, Ohio, businessman Mike Meister asked him to go to the Export-Import Bank of the United States in Washington, D.C., (Eximbank), to see about getting the $55 million loan.

Lukens said the Eximbank turned him down. He said that was his last association with Lee and Hy-Test.

But Wheeler said the loan was all set up. The Turks were to get $55 million over five years — $5 million every six months.

Wheeler said the Eximbank was ready to approve the loan. All that was needed was approval from the Foreign Credit Insurance Association, a Eximbank subsidiary.

"We needed to have $500,000 in the bank as collateral, and Mr. Meister said we were just short of that, but that it would be okay," Wheeler said.

That money was in the Winters Bank and actually belonged to Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky, however.

Wheeler said: "The people in Lexington pulled the money out when they found out we'd been asking about it." The loan fell through when the money was transferred out.

"Lester was never the same after that," Wheeler said. "He felt he'd been done in by the people in Lexington."

When the loan fell through, the Turks, already angry over the low-grade coal Lee had shipped them, cancelled the contract. Hy-Test of Kentucky, which had been teetering on the brink of a financial disaster, collapsed.

"There was no way to salvage the company. Lee had us locked in on a bunch of 12-month contracts for coal we couldn't sell. It was all substandard coal, and there was no market for it," Eilers said.

In January, 1976, the miners tired of waiting for their money and filed suits against Hy-Test for $309,000. Cumberledge and Turner got together on Feb. 12, 1976, and put Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky into bankruptcy.

All told, the company owed $10,706,754 to 47 separate creditors. "None of them probably will ever be paid," said court-appointed trustee Jerry Truitt of Lexington.

Lester Lee's dream of a trans-global coal empire was over. Wheeler said Lee stayed in New Albany, Ohio, until May, 1976, and then retreated to Newport, Ky., leaving behind a stack of unpaid bills.

Ries Hengstmengle said he forfeited the $235,000 he'd put up as a performance bond on the contract. His home in The Hague was repossessed. Van Hoorn estimated his losses at $800,000.

Nashville, Tenn., TV personality Floyd Kephart, who helped Lee supply coal on the contract, said he was left with $300,000 in bills. He said he's still paying on the Hy-Test fiasco.

Two of the coal suppliers for Hy-Test, NM&N Coal Co. and Pawnee Mining Co. in Alabama, went into bankruptcy themselves after Hy-Test folded.

On the surface, it appears everyone involved with Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky lost money. But there is still a fortune unaccounted for.

According to Turkish trading documents acquired by The Kentucky Post, Hy-Test withdrew $4.5 million from the Turkish letters of credit. Bookkeeper Eilers was flabbergasted when shown the accountings.

"We couldn't have gotten that much!" he said. "If we'd have gotten that money, the company would have survived. The only money we ever took in was the $1.5 million I put in the bank myself," he said.

Where the remaining $3 million went is unknown. But Lester Lee, when he arrived in Newport, "was loaded," one acquaintance said.

In August, 1977, Lester Lee bought a house at 823 E. Alexandria Pike, Cold Spring, for $43,000 cash. In July, 1977, he bought a half interest in a proposed adult bookstore at 708 Monmouth St., Newport, from convicted burglar and safecracker Albert (Sammy) Wright.

Shortly before that, Lee had offered $2500 to three Newport commission candidates if they would take a hands-off approach to Lee's new bookstore. They refused the "contribution," and the bookstore never opened.

There is some evidence to indicate Lee was still involved in coal through another adult bookstore at 721 Monmouth St. That, too, was owned by Sammy Wright, who was once convicted for hiding a member of Detroit's feared Purple Gang from federal authorities.

Charles Wheeler said he received a phone call from a Belgian named Nico Steylen a few weeks before Lee was killed. Steylen is listed in Hy-Test documents as the sales manager of Hy-Test Europe. Wheeler said Steylen had come to the United States during Hy-Test's glory days and discussed buying ships with Lee.

"Steylen called me and said he and Lee were going back into the coal business. Steylen said he'd spoken to Lee at the bookstore. It was my understanding Lester was running a coal company out of the bookstore," Wheeler said.

Another associate of Lee's said Lee was receiving calls from Turkey at the bookstore. "Ronnie Smith would be able to tell you about those," the man said.

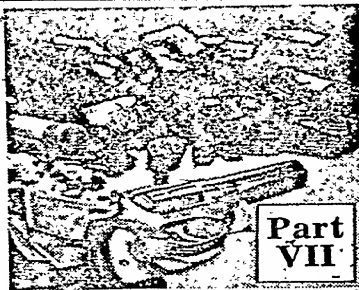

Smith, a former Green Beret, is a Sammy Wright sidekick who's been convicted of possession of dangerous drugs and assault. He is awaiting trial on another assault charge.

Smith, 29, was behind the counter of the bookstore at 721 Monmouth St. when Kentucky Post reporters approached him for an interview. "I don't have no comment," Smith said warily.

If Lee was going back into the coal business in late 1977, he never got the chance. He was shot to death Jan. 7, 1978, while working in Sammy Wright's bookstore.

NEXT: The invasion of the coal swindlers.

THE COAL CONNECTION

The last coal boom drew a host of swindlers and racketeers into the industry. Among them was Lester Lee, a convicted rapist and suspected hit man who was once on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list.

Lee was murdered Jan. 7, 1978, in a seedy adult bookstore in Newport. But his colleagues in crime are alive and well. In

"The Coal Connection," Kentucky Post Staff Writers Gary Webb and Tom Scheffey reveal the swindlers' techniques and document their successes.

With the federal government counting on coal to provide a bigger share of the nation's energy needs, another coal boom is building.

And the swindlers are ready.

Reagan, aides refuse to discuss Lester Lee

By Gary Webb

Kentucky Post Staff Writer

Ronald Reagan and his entourage were given a big welcome by area Teamsters Monday afternoon, but neither the candidate nor his staff were eager to discuss a man who once boasted of being former Teamsters president Jimmy Hoffa's bodyguard: Lester Clifford Lee.

Lee, a reputed underworld hit man who was slain in a Newport adult bookstore Jan. 7, 1978, had flown Reagan and crew through Kentucky on a four-state campaign swing in September 1975.

That association, and Lee's extensive business dealings with Ohio state Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, who helped introduce Reagan at Monday's rally, were bared this summer in "The Coal Connection," a 17-part series in The Kentucky Post outlining organized crime activity in the coal industry.

Lee, in a rented plane, flew Reagan and Lukens to campaign stops in Evansville, Ind., Dayton, Ohio, and Chicago on Sept. 25, 1975. The $3,324 plane rental bill, paid by Lee's Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky, Inc., was the subject of a complaint filed with the Federal Election Commission last month.

That complaint, filed by Washington attorney Paul Levy, accuses Reagan, Lukens and Reagan's campaign committee of accepting illegal contributions from Lee and Hy-Test.

Levy's suit also questioned the propriety of Reagan's appearance in August with Teamsters Vice President Roy L. Williams. Williams, twice indicted and acquitted on embezzlement charges, is "under the complete domination of (Kansas City organized crime chief Nicholas) Civella" U.S. Labor Department documents show.

On hand to welcome Reagan to Greater Cincinnati Monday was Teamsters Local 100 president Gerald F. Kiser, who presented the candidate with a cap and jacket emblazoned with the Teamsters logo.

Before Kiser became president of the Local in January 1975, he was road steward at Dutchess Furniture Co. in Florence, now defunct.

manager — also were employed by Dutchess at the same time as Kiser.

When asked about the FEC complaint, Reagan's national campaign chairman, William Casey, said: "I don't have anything to say about that. I have no comment."

Casey spun on his heels and walked off.

Reagan was asked about the complaint as he settled into the back seat of a powder blue Lincoln Continental. Reagan made no response. The power window slid up silently and the big car glided away.

It was a fine night for a killing.

A muffling fog had settled over downtown Newport. The garish neon blaze of Monmouth Street's strip was smeared and softened in the haze.

The bars and strip joints had just closed, and the Friday night celebrants were feeling their way home. Soon, the streets were deserted.

The temperature was two degrees above freezing that night, Jan. 7, 1978. Shortly before 3 a.m., two men emerged from the gloom into the light cast by the only open shop.

One was a swarthy man wearing dark clothing. The other was tall, about six feet, with a sandy moustache hiding a harelip. He looked to be middle-aged, and he spoke with a pronounced lisp.

The big man pushed open the black wooden door of Lewallen's Variety Store at 721 Monmouth St. and walked inside the seedy adult bookstore. The other man stayed slightly behind.

A portly, 45-year-old man named Lester Lee looked up from behind the counter when the tall man entered. He seemed to know the man. But this wasn't a friendly visit.

"Hit the floor!" the tall man shouted, pulling a revolver from within the folds of his beige overcoat. There were few customers around to hear his command.

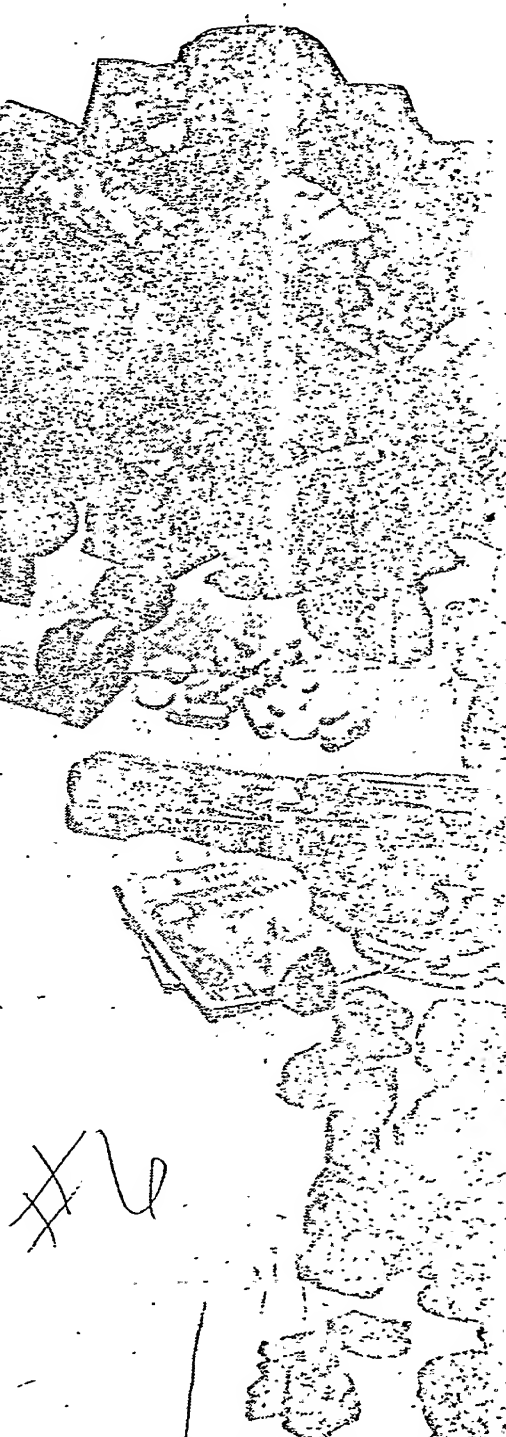

One was Eddie Chambers, a friend of Lee's and a bouncer in a couple of Newport clubs. The gunman swung the pistol towards Chambers, and Chambers dropped to the floor.

Lee rounded the corner of the upraised counter/display case. The man pointed the pistol at Lee and pulled the trigger. The gun only clicked.

Lee reached for the gun he carried in his waistband, behind his back. The gun clattered to the floor and fell down the one step separating the counter area from the main floor.

As Lee reached for it, Chambers fled down a corridor housing peep show booths and hid in the dark bowels of the bookstore.

Lester Lee's killers vanished

The man pulled the trigger again and the gun fired. A bullet smashed into the left side of Lee's head, spinning him around. Lee tumbled to the gritty linoleum floor.

The killers dashed from the bookstore and vanished into the fog. They were not seen again.

Minutes later, Newport police Sgt. Jerry Early — having heard the call when he opened the door of his unmarked cruiser at the corner of Eighth and Monmouth — sidled up to the door of the bookstore. He pulled his service revolver and poked his head inside the door.

Lee was laying on the floor, his eyes were half open and he was making this sound, like a death rattle," recalled Early, now Dayton police chief. "I could tell then he was zonked."

By then, police cruisers and ambulances were screaming up to the scene, bathing the dim street in brilliant blues and reds.

Lee was scooped onto a stretcher and heaved into the back of the ambulance. Early climbed in with him, on the off chance Lee would regain consciousness and make a statement. He didn't.

While doctors at St. Luke Hospital in Ft. Thomas worked frantically on the comatose Lee, Jerry Early sat in the lobby of the emergency room and flipped through Lee's wallet, looking for identification.

It wasn't a wallet that belonged to a lowly bookstore clerk. Inside, Early found $835 in cash and a $263 check from a Hy-Test Coal Company.

Had Early looked further, he would have seen something even more curious than the check: 43 business cards, most of them from coal company presidents, stock brokers, real estate agents and investment bankers. One of the business cards would have startled even a seen-it-all-cop like Early.

Embossed on the card was the seal of the Ohio State Senate. Underneath, in large capital letters, the name "Donald E. Lukens" and below that, the words "Minority Whip."

On the back, there were three handwritten phone numbers: one for Lukens' home in Middletown, Ohio, one for his Washington, D.C., apartment and another for his apartment in Columbus, Ohio.

But Early didn't get to see those. Before he got that far, a nurse came from the emergency room and told him Lee was dead, a bullet lodged in his brain.

Since that winter night more than two years ago, a lid of silence has been clamped on the case. Newport police officials have steadfastly refused to discuss any aspect of the murder of Lester Clifford Lee.

"I can't give out any details. It's still under active investigation," said Lt. Col. Albert Garnick.

The Kentucky Post investigated the murder of Lester Lee for 20 months, interviewing more than 125 people and filing 32 Freedom of Information Act requests with the FBI, the Bureau of Prisons, the U.S. Parole Board, the Air Force and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The investigation spanned 20 states and three foreign countries and produced more than 3800 documents, 950 relating solely to Lester Lee.

It was determined:

1. Lee was a convicted rapist with a long criminal record. At into dark Newport night

one time Lee had been on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted Fugitives list and was believed to have been a professional killer, responsible for dozens of contract murders.

2. Lee was president of an international coal company which made apparently illicit contributions to the 1976 presidential campaign of Ronald Reagan and had under contract the services of Ohio State Sen. Donald (Buz) Lukens, a close Reagan political ally and now Midwest coordinator of the Reagan campaign.

3. Lee was a close business associate of convicted gun runner Dominick E. Bartone, reputed to be a top Cleveland organized crime figure. Lee and Bartone shared a $55 million coal contract with the country of Turkey.

But more than that, it appears Lee was a piece in the sprawling jigsaw puzzle of organized crime in the American coal industry, a picture investigators are putting together piece by piece today.

It is a picture of massive fraud, bribery, narcotics trafficking, corruption and murder.

This investigative series begins with the remarkable history of Lester Lee, detailing his role in the coal racket. It also will explain, swindle by swindle, the operations of mobsters and Mafia-linked con men who have been preying on the U.S. coal industry since the coal boom hit in the mid-1970s.

Lester Lee is finished, but men of his ilk are not. They have shown that coal is a particularly attractive industry for economic fraud.

Coal properties are easy to come by in any of 10 states, but they're off the beaten track. Law enforcement is spread paper thin, and few local lawmen really understand the complex interstate and international swindles.

Coal attracts money. With energy in short supply, customers grow desperate for a source, and investors scramble to buy into a boom. It stacks up to a mixture of confusion, greed, high stakes and lax law enforcement — a happy swindling ground.

The coal racket flourishes when energy needs are highest, and recent energy policy is shifting America to coal.

Threats of conflict in the Middle East and rapid OPEC price hikes place U.S. oil supplies in constant jeopardy. Nuclear reactors have not proven the safe, cheap power source they once promised to be, and the era of solar energy is just dawning.

President Carter has proposed to spend billions to develop synthetic fuels and speed conversion of oil-burning electric generators to coal. Meanwhile, only $1 million has been allocated to combat the coal racket, a highly sophisticated operation with a self-generating money supply.

The stage is set for booming years in the coal business — and booming years for the coal racket.

NEXT: Lester Lee, from street punk to hired killer.

It's that season again. What begins in this profession as gossip, slander, and innuendo about presidential candidates is raised to journalism, which is in turn raised to the status of historical record. This quadrennial pursuit is not particularly high minded, but then neither is history. It is an inevitable byproduct of a political system capable of electing peanut farmers and former movie stars to the presidency. Generally it does only glancing harm, if any at all. Like the most wicked gossip, it is both highly pleasurable and not entirely fair. This year's broad-side-of-a-barn-sized target is, naturally, Ronald Reagan. The Washington Post kicked things off several weeks ago with a report alleging that former Reagan aides Michael Deaver and Peter Hannaford have been registered as agents for the Taiwan government. Reagan's sympathy for Taiwan is well known. Next, the Village Voice's impresarios of political dirt, Alexander Cockburn and James Ridgeway, dug up the 1976 testimony of a Grumman aircraft executive before Senator Frank Church's Subcommittee on Multinational Corporations alleging that in 1972 Richard V. Allen, then deputy assistant to President Nixon on economic affairs and now a top Reagan foreign policy adviser, had asked for a million dollar campaign contribution from Grumman to pave the way for a Japanese aircraft contract. Allen denied that he "had any such conversation" with the Grumman official; the official stands by his testimony. Well, Reagan admirers will say, so what? All this only suggests a certain level of wheeling and dealing among those close to Reagan. This brings us to another, less well publicized report published several weeks ago in the Covington, Kentucky, Post. The Post, struck by the apparent lack of enthusiasm of local police to investigate the murder of a local hood in Newport, Kentucky, spent almost two years investigating the case and came up with some interesting dirt indeed. The deceased hood in question had only recently been president of an outfit called the Hy-Test Coal Company, in which capacity, on September 25, 1975, he had squired none other than Ronald Reagan around Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois in a rented Lear jet. According to the Post story, the Hy-Test president, one Lester Lee, a convicted rapist and con man, through the offices of Ohio state senator and former congressman Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, chartered a plane for what was ostensibly a Reagan campaign swing. Though a Reagan spokesman has denied the trip was for purposes of campaigning, and thus defended its failure to report Lee's largesse to federal election authorities, the Reagan people apparently do not deny that Reagan, with aide—yes, Mike Deaver—were picked up by Lee the morning of September 25, then flew to Lexington to pick up former governor (and Citizens for Reagan founder) Louie Nunn and Lukens for a tour of Evansville, Dayton, and finally Chicago, where Reagan addressed the Executive Club the next morning.

What was Ronald Reagan doing with Lester Lee, who apparently had wangled a $55 million coal contract with the Turkish government through shady intermediaries, had a prison record as long as your leg, and who ended up two years later bleeding to death on the floor of a backwater porno bookstore after the coal deal fell through? Lukens, an avid and well-known Reagan supporter who was on Hy-Test's payroll as a PR consultant at the time, obviously played a role. This is not to suggest that Ronald Reagan is habitually in cahoots with former rapists or criminals, nor that he has secret investments in the Turkish coal industry. Far from it. I suspect Ronald Reagan would be shocked to know just how shady his fellow passenger in that Lear jet actually was, if he remembers the occasion. Significantly, according to the Post, his handlers have not yet made him aware of the Lee story, the only one of the recent flurry in which he was personally involved. He certainly hasn't responded to it himself. He should. Otherwise, there will be questions. For instance, what else are his associates and handlers up to while he is off taking these famous naps? And how often does he take them?

When Lester Lee used to talk about Ronald Reagan, Hy-Test Coal Co. office manager Fred J. Ellers Jr. would listen skeptically.

"Lee was such a braggart. He said he'd been flying around with Ronald Reagan. I couldn't figure it. Why would Reagan fool with such a dinky outfit? I mean, we were brand new. We had nothing to offer anyone," Ellers remarked.

Ellers, 39, a tall, scholarly-looking Park Hills man, remained doubtful of Lee's talk until Hy-Test fired its bookkeeper, Lee's brother-in-law David Fleissner. Ellers inherited the green binder Fleissner used as the company ledger.

Written several times in ink on the ledger sheets were the words: "plane rental for Reagan trip."

"It was kind of a shocker," Ellers admitted. But Lester Lee surprised a lot of people.

After spending most of his life behind bars for a variety of felonies, Lee quickly became president of a multi-national coal corporation headquartered in Lexington, Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky Inc.

THE COAL CONNECTION

Part VI

By late summer of 1975, Hy-Test had a lot of money. Its coal contract with the country of Turkey was worth $55 million, and the company projected a $3.5 million profit by December, 1976. Lee was spending some of that money to build up Hy-Test's image. In August, 1975, he hired Ohio State Sen. Donald E. (Buz) Lukens as a public relations consultant.

Lukens and two other men formed The Shelley Co. in New Albany, Ohio, to tend to Hy-Test's needs.

Lukens was also doing work that summer for his longtime political friend Ronald Reagan, drumming up Midwestern support for Reagan's candidacy in the 1976 presidential election.

Lukens said he invited the California governor to speak at a fundraiser in Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 25, 1975, while Reagan was on a nationwide campaign tour. But there was one problem.

Lukens said he got a call from the Reagan entourage a few days before Reagan was to appear in Dayton.

"They said: 'Man, we can't get a plane. We'd like to make your Dayton appearance.' I told them: 'Look, if you get him to Dayton, I'll get you a plane.' I didn't have a plane, but I told them I'd get one," Lukens recalled.

Lukens said he first tried to get the loan of a corporate plane from Armco Steel of Middletown, Ohio, and Champion Paper Co. of Hamilton, both of which are in Lukens' Fourth Senate District. He was not successful.

"I was getting a little desperate," he said.

So Lukens called his partner in The Shelley Co., Charles Wheeler, 59, a convicted burglar with a criminal record, and spoke Wheeler about the Reagan appearance.

Wheeler, Lukens said, wanted to donate money to the campaign. "I said, 'Well, great. We can use all the money we can get, but what I'd really like to do is get an airplane. Do you know anyone?'"

According to Lukens, Wheeler suggested Lester Lee and Hy-Test Coal Co., Shelley's sole client. "I said, 'Jeepers, do you think he'd let us use it?'"

Lukens called to find out.

Lee "said he had a plane — any corporation would. I thought I was in the big time," Lukens said.

But Lee didn't have a plane either. Instead, Lee turned to Sprite Flite Jets Inc. of Lexington and rented a red and white Lear Jet for Ronald Reagan.

"They believed in doing things in style," Ellers said of Hy-Test.

Two days before Reagan's Dayton appearance, two calls were made from Hy-Test to Reagan's Los Angeles public relations firm, Deaver and Hannaford. Lukens said: "They (Hy-Test) were probably confirming the airplane."

Lukens explained that Michael Deaver, who was Reagan's chief of staff at the time, was in charge of Reagan's itinerary. Peter Hannaford is one of Reagan's closest political advisors.

The same day, Lee called Hy-Test Vice President Ton Van Hoorn at Hy-Test's Caribbean offices in the Netherlands Antilles Islands.

"I was in Curacao, and Lee told me to come up," the young Dutch contractor said. "Lee said he had a Lear jet there and said we were going on a trip with Ronald Reagan," he added. Intrigued, Van Hoorn flew up to join the Hy-Test/Reagan trip along the way.

The reason Hy-Test agreed to provide the plane for Reagan is something best known to Lee, who was murdered while working in a Newport, Ky., adult bookstore Jan. 7, 1978.

Other Hy-Test officers said they didn't know precisely what Lee had in mind. But they knew generally.

Ries Hengstmengle, president of Hy-Test of Kentucky's Dutch arm, Hy-Test International, said: "Lee supported the campaign. As far as I can see, they bet heavily Reagan would be the next president of the United States and, you know, favors would be returned."

Ray Cumberledge, vice-president of Hy-Test of Kentucky and now director of planning for the state Justice Department, said Lee "never ever did say point blank what the purpose of the trip was, but you know far better than I do that you just don't spend money for something like that and not expect something in return."

Nor was Sen. Lukens mystified by Lee's motive. "I've never met a human being who wasn't interested in having a piece of a president," Lukens said.

"Lee pretended he was unimpressed — 'Mr. Reagan, how are you? Happy to help you out' — but I'm telling you now he had the bug just like everyone else. It just didn't show as much," Lukens said.

The morning of Sept. 25, 1975, Lee flew to Memphis, Tenn., where the night before, Reagan had addressed a crowd of more than 900 at the Hilton Inn at Memphis International Airport, his second stop in Tennessee that day.

According to The Commercial Appeal in Memphis, the stops were part of "a warmup tour for the presidential campaign."

Reagan and his chief of staff Deaver boarded the jet and flew to Bluegrass Field in Lexington, where Lukens and former Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn joined the entourage.

Nunn said he'd been invited by Lukens, who called him several days before the trip and told him "some of them were going down, that they were trying to get a fundraising thing set up in Kentucky, and they wanted to talk to me about that. I guess it was for Reagan."

Nunn was certainly the right person to call about Reagan fundraisers. At that time, Nunn was one of five founding members of Citizens For Reagan, Reagan's only authorized campaign committee. By the end of September, 1975, Citizens For Reagan had raised $396,462 on behalf of the former movie star.

The jet flew to Dress Regional Airport in Evansville, Ind., where it was met by Hy-Test officers Cumberledge and Van Hoorn; Lukens' partners in The Shelley Co., Charles Wheeler and Mike Meister, and a handful of local GOP leaders.

In the crowd was The Evansville Press political reporter, Robert Flynn. Flynn had been tipped to Reagan's surprise visit by an unusual source.

"About two days before Reagan arrived in Evansville, a local gambler named C. W. Lee Jr. called me at home and told me Reagan was coming to town. I called the county GOP chairman, and he didn't know anything about it. He seemed a little annoyed that no one had told him," Flynn said.

C. W. Lee probably learned of Reagan's trip from Lester Lee. Shortly before Flynn got his call, C. W.'s father got a $10,000 check from Hy-Test Coal Company. C. W.'s father wrote back to Lester Lee that C.W. Lee Oil Co. would use the money for an oil and gas venture. Hy-Test records show the payment of the check was stopped.

Lukens said the Evansville stop was arranged through "one of Charlie (Wheeler's) friends there. I don't remember who that was now, someone in the party there."

Reagan landed in Evansville with little advance notice. Wrote Flynn, in the next day's Press: "The Evansville non-event appeared to have been a spur of the moment decision. With (Reagan) on the plane were several representatives of Hy-Test International, Inc. The firm owned the plane and also appeared to be the host for the visit, which seemed to puzzle the local Republicans."

Reagan told Flynn: "I just wanted to have lunch with my friends in Evansville."

The group dined at the Evansville Ramada Inn, and Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky picked up the $115 tab.

But the Evansville stop was for more than lunch, Lukens told The Kentucky Post in a recent interview on the floor of the Ohio Senate.

"It got us a lot of votes. You know, I was building a little favor for the future because we knew Reagan was going to run. We did extremely well there when the votes were cast because we'd come to that county and stopped in that town," Lukens said.

Lukens said the trip was in no way connected with his work for Hy-Test at The Shelley Co., despite the fact that all three Shelley partners were in Evansville to meet Reagan that day.

Mike Meister, 60, one of the three partners, said he couldn't remember "if we were responsible (for the Reagan trip) or not. I don't know."

Meister claimed he didn't even know why he was in Evansville. "I probably went around and put nameplates in front of luncheon dishes or something like that," he said.

Wheeler told reporters the Reagan trip never occurred.

Whatever The Shelley Co. was doing for Hy-Test in the latter part of September, 1975, Hy-Test paid handsomely for Shelley's services.

On Sept. 29 and 30, Hy-Test sent The Shelley Co. three checks totaling $19,086. Neither Lukens nor Meister nor Wheeler could explain what that money was for.

After the Evansville luncheon, Louie Nunn was flown back to Lexington on another plane. Nunn said it was his understanding Hy-Test Coal Co. paid for that plane.

Hy-Test Vice President Cumberledge returned by car, and Reagan flew on to Dayton in the Hy-Test jet with Lee, Wheeler, Van Hoorn, Lukens and Meister.

That afternoon, Reagan held a press conference in the old Dayton Courthouse. Later Reagan was guest of honor at a fundraiser at the Associates Club in the University of Dayton arena.

It was an odd assortment of partygoers.

Mingling with the local GOP higher-ups was Lester Lee, a convicted rapist and suspected hit man, Charles Wheeler, a convicted burglar and armed robber and Paul Wheeler, Charles Wheeler's brother and business partner, also a convicted burglar and armed robber twice sentenced to life in prison.

The cheapest tickets to the cocktail party cost $25 a couple. The most expensive were $100 a couple. Lee and the Wheelers "bought the big tickets. They were all hot on Ronald Reagan," Lukens said.

After the party, Reagan spoke to a crowd of more than 500 at the arena, denying repeatedly he was a presidential candidate.

From Dayton, the Hy-Test/Reagan entourage flew to Chicago, where Reagan and Lukens got off.

Reagan may have told the Dayton crowd he wasn't a candidate, but when he addressed the Executive Club of Chicago the next morning, he certainly sounded like one.

At that gathering, Reagan delivered his most significant speech of the 1976 campaign, his famous $90 billion gaffe.

"What I propose is nothing less than a systematic transfer of authority and resources to the states, a program of creative federalism for America's third century," Reagan said.

He presented a detailed plan that was to be the economic foundation of his campaign — and he spent the rest of the campaign defending his arithmetic.

Lukens went, on Reagan's behalf, to address a national convention of office outfitters that same morning.

The trip cost Hy-Test Coal Co. of Kentucky Inc. $3324.88 for jet plane rentals, which it paid from its account at First Security National Bank in Lexington. The $115.80 Evansville luncheon also was billed to Hy-Test, but it was never paid. It is listed in Hy-Test's bankruptcy files.

Neither expense appears as a campaign contribution, obligation or debt in the 1975-1976 records of Citizens For Reagan.

The contributions were never reported, Joe Holmes told The Kentucky Post in a recent interview. Holmes was Reagan's press secretary at the time. He since has been named communications director.

"Our position is that Gov. Reagan was not a candidate in September of 1975," Holmes said. "Until you formally announce, you're not a candidate." Reagan formally announced Nov. 20, 1975.

Further, Holmes asserted, there was no need for Reagan to report the contributions because the entire Hy-Test trip was for Buz Lukens' state senate re-election campaign.

Holmes' first statement is wrong, according to the Federal Election Commission. And Lukens denied the second one.

According to FEC records, Ronald Reagan legally became a candidate on July 24, 1975, the day Citizens For Reagan filed its organizational statement with the FEC and began reporting contributions to the Reagan campaign.

"A formal announcement doesn't mean a thing in terms of the federal election campaign laws," said FEC Public Affairs Director Fred Elland.

The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 states that a person becomes a candidate and is legally required to report campaign contributions and expenditures when he has "received contributions or made expenditures, or has given his consent for any other person to receive or make contributions."

Elland said Reagan could have remained a non-candidate by simply disavowing the Citizens For Reagan committee when it filed its organizational statement with the FEC in July, 1975.

Elland cited the recent Edward Kennedy draft movement as an example. "We had some 70 committees register for Kennedy. Each time one of them registered, Kennedy wrote us and told us he was disavowing that committee," Elland explained.

That was not the case with Ronald Reagan in 1975. Far from disavowing Citizens For Reagan, Reagan wrote the committee chairman on July 14, 1975 — more than two months before the Hy-Test trip — and said he recognized "the committee must file with the Federal Elections Commission as working on my behalf. I trust this letter will suffice as my consent for purposes of allowing you to do so."

In fact, Lukens and Lee discussed contributing to Reagan's campaign while they were flying with Reagan on the Hy-Test jet.

"They were going to give big contributions. They had all these friends, these coal miners, who were going to give $1000 each," Lukens said.

Lukens said Lee and Wheeler made "big talk. They said, 'Oh, don't worry. We'll get you $10,000 or $15,000 or $20,000.' I said, 'Look, if you want to make an impression on Reagan, the thing to do is give a legal contribution. Hit your friends up,'" Lukens said.

Federal election laws prohibit personal political campaign contributions in excess of $1000.

Lukens said "nothing ever came of it. I checked." Lukens told The Kentucky Post he asked Reagan a few weeks after the trip, "What have you got from Kentucky or West Virginia or Ohio? Any $1000 goodies? Nothing."

Reagan's very presence on Hy-Test's jet appears to be a violation of federal election laws which prohibit corporations from giving "anything of value" to a federal office-seeker.

"Corporate contributions have been illegal since 1907," the FEC's Elland said.

Accepting illegal contributions or failing to report contributions carries stiff civil and criminal penalties. A candidate who willfully violates the federal election laws can be fined $25,000 and imprisoned for a year.

But Reagan spokesman Holmes said the contributions weren't illegal because the entire Hy-Test trip "was not a Reagan activity. The Governor went to do a series of fundraisers for Sen. Lukens. Sen. Lukens asked Gov. Reagan to appear at fundraisers for the Senator's campaign."

Holmes was asked why a state senator from Middletown, Ohio, would be campaigning for re-election in Memphis, Tenn., Lexington, Ky., Evansville, Ind., Dayton, Ohio, and Chicago, Ill.

"I would suggest you pose that question to Sen. Lukens," Holmes replied.

Lukens flatly denied any portion of the trip was for his campaign.

"First of all, Dayton isn't even in my district, and Evansville isn't even in my state. And the Chicago stop was (Reagan's) baby," Lukens, now Reagan's Midwest campaign coordinator, said.

"I received no money from these stops. And I received no money from Lester Lee or Hy-Test, either personally or politically. Besides, how would Joe Holmes know? He wasn't even on board then," Lukens said sharply.

Citizens For Reagan co-founder Louie Nunn had no trouble deciding which candidate the Hy-Test trip benefited. "I felt it was for Reagan. I don't know why Reagan would have been down there making an appearance for Lukens in Evansville."

Holmes refused to allow The Kentucky Post to speak to Reagan about the campaign trips, or any other contributions Lester Lee or Hy-Test may have made to Reagan during the last election.

Lukens, when asked if Lee gave Reagan any cash contributions during the plane trip, said: "I cannot say he didn't, but I don't know that he did."

For weeks, Holmes said, he would not even broach the subject with Reagan. "He can't be bothered with things like this," Holmes declared. But more recently, Holmes said, "I've talked to the Governor about anything from a Lester Lee, and he said he doesn't remember any Lester Lee."

But Lee remembered Reagan. While working at the adult bookstore on Monmouth Street, Lee would boast that he and Reagan were close friends.

Reagan's direct association with Hy-Test appears to have ended with the plane trip. But Lukens' certainly did not.

With the federal government counting on coal to provide a bigger share of the nation's energy needs, another coal boom is building.

And the swindlers are ready.

The $90 billion question — Reagan's controversial plan for the nation's economy — arose after a speech Reagan gave in Chicago on Sept. 26, 1975. Lester Lee flew Reagan to Chicago to deliver that speech.

Hy-Test's rented Lear jet flew to Memphis to pick up Reagan, to Lexington to pick up Louie Nunn and Buz Lukens, then to rallies in Evansville, Dayton and Chicago. Nunn got off in Evansville. Reagan and Lukens got off in Chicago.

Lester Lee had good reason to expect political pull.

In 1953, when Lee was in federal prison for rape and sodomy, he was taken to the parole board from U.S. Rep. Howard Baker Sr., father of present Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker Jr., immediately preceded Lee's release.

In early 1975, Lee was negotiating a multi-million dollar contract with Turkey, and he sent a Turkish Minister of Finance a new Buick sedan. The contract went to Lee's Hy-Test Coal Co.

In June, when Hy-Test was hired dock space in the port of Mobile, Ala., Lee went to see the clerk of the Tennessee House (now a Carter/Mondale campaign director) who introduced him to an influential ex-senator in Alabama. Both were paid for their trip, and the dock space materialized.

Two months later, Hy-Test got the chance to hire the minority whip of the Ohio State Senate, a man who had served in the U.S. Congress. Lee promptly signed a contract for the politician's services.

The last coal boom drew a host of swindlers and racketeers into the industry. Among them was Lester Lee, a convicted rapist and suspected hit man who was once on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list.

Lee was murdered Jan. 7, 1978, in a seedy adult bookstore in Newport. But his colleagues in crime are alive and well. In

"The Coal Connection," Kentucky Post Staff Writers Gary Webb and Tom Scheffey reveal the swindlers' techniques and document their successes.

With the federal government counting on coal to provide a bigger share of the nation's energy needs, another coal boom is building.

And the swindlers are ready.

Hy-Test was in high gear. With a $55 million Turkish coal contract in hand, the company moved from its rundown offices on Pinoak Street in Lexington to a fashionable concrete and smoked-glass headquarters on Waller Avenue.

A Hy-Test financial statement dated July 31, 1975, showed the four-month-old coal company with slightly more than $1 million in sales with assets of more than half a million dollars.

The financial statement, which was unsigned and uncertified, showed expected profits from the Turkish contract to be

$3.5 million. Millions of dollars worth of credit were being posted in Hy-Test's name by the Turks in international banks in Europe and Dayton, Ohio.

"Everybody was waiting for Lee to make them rich," said Fred J. Eilers Jr., then Hy-Test office manager.

Eilers, 39, Park Hills, left a job as office manager of Dutchess Furniture Co., Florence, to work for Hy-Test.

One person with a big stake in Lee was Dominick E. Bartone, a tall, corpulent man reputed to be one of the top organized crime figures in Cleveland, Ohio. Bartone, a thrice-convicted gun runner, helped Lester Lee when Hy-Test was brand new. Now Lee returned the favor.

On June 5, 1975, Hy-Test agreed to buy from Bartone's American Concrete Builders Inc., anywhere from one-quarter to one-half of the coal to supply the 930,000-ton Turkish contract. Bartone was looking to take in $10.5 million on the deal.

The contract was witnessed by Harold R. Fetter, a Springfield, Ohio, man who's been arrested seven times on charges of check fraud and larceny by trick, but never convicted. Fetter said he was hired by Bartone to "do some contract stuff, be sort of a transaction agent."

Harold Fetter, for his work was to get as much as $420,000. Lee instructed Winters National Bank in Dayton, Ohio, to pay Bartone and Fetter directly from the Turkish letters of credit posted there.

But the Turkish coal deal turned sour on Bartone, Fetter said. Bartone bought a coal mine in Pound, Va., to supply Lee's contract, but the mine was a failure. "They had three cave-ins, got their equipment buried three or four times. You could have put in an envelope the coal they mined there," Fetter said.

Fetter said Bartone nearly went broke on that mine. "You'd never believe it about a person like Mr. Bartone, but I think he's extremely naive. He left his bleached bones down there when they got done with him," Fetter explained.

Bartone may have been naive about coal, but he was wise in the ways of swindlers.

In 1977, Bartone was convicted of defrauding the now-defunct Northern Ohio Bank of $249,000 in loans. Bartone claimed that money was to finance his coal ventures. In December, 1977, he and a Lyndhurst, Ohio, man named Morton Franklin were convicted of obstruction of justice in Miami for attempting to smuggle machine guns to Cuba's premier Fidel Castro.

Bartone was not one to let politics stand in the way of profit. In 1959, he had been convicted attempting to smuggle guns ousted Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista, who was plotting a coup against Castro.

Bartone's relationship with Castro intrigued the House Select Subcommittee looking into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. In March, 1978, Bartone was subpoenaed before the Subcommittee, which was exploring a possible link between Castro and the Kennedy assassination.

That same month, he and gun running partner Morton Franklin were accused of related fraud by the Securities and Exchange Commission. SEC charged Bartone had stolen most of a $600,000 investment he had raised to mine land in West Virginia and lied to investors telling them there was coal on the land.

Bartone signed a consent decree that permanently enjoined him from public money-raising schemes.

A month earlier, Bartone had pleaded guilty to bribing a Newark, N. J., bank officer. He also pleaded guilty to conspiring to defraud that same bank, The Trust Co. of New Jersey, of $585,000 in loans.

He is now in the federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa., serving a seven-year sentence for bank fraud, bribery and obstruction of justice.

Despite the fact that Harold Fetter witnessed every contract signed between Lester Lee and Dominick Bartone, Fetter claimed there was no real connection between Bartone and Fetter's Springfield, Ohio, mortgage brokerage, Sterling Group and Associates.

"We were just a hired hand," Fetter said.

But Ohio tax records show the original incorporator of Sterling Group was a man named Bruce R. Condon, and Condon's signature appears as secretary of Bartone's American Concrete Builders, Inc. on two Hy-Test contracts.

The illegal loans from the Northern Ohio Bank were made in the name of American Concrete Builders.

Fetter's association with Hy-Test appears to have been steady. Hy-Test's phone records show Lee was in regular contact with Fetter and his company throughout 1975 and into 1976.

Bartone and Fetter's $19.5 million slice of the Turkish contract was made final Aug. 5, 1975. That same day, Lester Lee signed a one-year, $60,000 contract with a firm who called themselves The Shelley Company.

The three Shelley partners were an ex-Congressman, an ex-convict and a businessman who calls himself a "generalist."

The contract is quite clear about the services The Shelley Co. was to provide Hy-Test: "Public Relations in connection with various parts of the general public, industrial public, governmental public, as well as provide advice related to public offerings (and) increasing (Hy-Test's) profits."

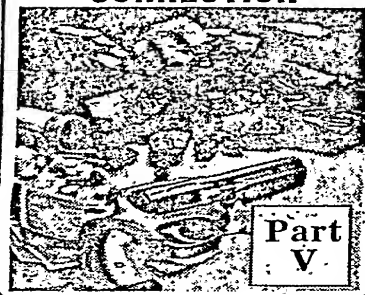

What isn't clear is exactly what The Shelley Co. did to live up to its contract, and the three men found that hard to explain. The thousands of dollars they were paid is an even bigger mystery.

The ex-Congressman was Donald E. (Buz) Lukens, a powerful conservative Republican who represents Ohio's Fourth District in the state senate. The ex-convict was Charles V. Wheeler, a New Albany, Ohio, commodities broker with a long criminal record. The "generalist" was Mike Meister of Columbus, Ohio, a man who claims years of experience in finance.

Lukens, 49, is a handsome political dynamo, "a fighter," he says. He served two terms in the U.S. House of Representatives in the mid-60s and has been national chairman of the Young Republicans, executive member of the Republican National Committee, minority whip of the Ohio Senate and is presently Midwest coordinator for the Ronald Reagan campaign. Lukens is a longtime friend and political supporter of the ex-California governor.

But Lukens' political career is not spotless. In 1973, during his second bid for governor, he was barred from running for filing his 1972 state senate campaign expenses late.

THE GOAL CONNECTION

Part

During the Senate "Korea-gate" hearings, Korean rice merchant Tongsun Park testified he made two bribe payments totalling $1000 to Lukens. Lukens denies the charge.

Last summer, Lukens was under investigation by postal authorities for a nationwide direct-mail campaign soliciting money for an anti-abortion "war chest" to defeat liberal U.S. Senators Birch Bayh (D-Ind.) and George McGovern (D-S.D.).

Bayh and McGovern complained to the U.S. Postal Service that the mailings were "misleading."

Lukens said Lester Lee was brought to him by Charles Wheeler. According to Lukens, Lee and Wheeler were "old boyhood friends."

Wheeler is 58 and makes his living as "a hustler," according to his sometime attorney Richard Vimont of Lexington. Vimont said he has defended Wheeler on charges of armed robbery and possession of counterfeit money, with mixed success.

Wheeler was convicted in 1966 of conspiracy to sell $25,000 worth of bogus $10 and $20 bills in Manchester, Ky.

Vimont recalled, "They had a roadblock set up for him. Charley did a U-turn and drove off at 100 miles an hour, throwing the funny money out of the window. Those farmers were finding money in the weeds for weeks."

Wheeler's criminal record shows 12 arrests on a variety of charges, including attempted burglary, attempted robbery, assault and battery, fraud, possession of forgeries and shooting with intent to kill. Wheeler, a Paintsville, Ky., native, served both federal and state prison sentences.

Wheeler operated a firm called International Sales and Associated Enterprises, Ltd., which used the same New Albany, Ohio, address as did The Shelley Co. Wheeler's partner in International Sales was his brother Paul Harrison Wheeler, 52.

Paul Wheeler's criminal record is even more sordid than his older brother's. According to his rap sheet, he has been sentenced to life imprisonment twice, once in 1960 for breaking and entering and armed burglary and again in 1961 for armed burglary and shooting with intent to kill. His sentence was commuted to nine years, and he was paroled in 1964.

Other arrests include theft of government property, receiving stolen property and armed assault.

The third part of the Shelley trio was Mike Meister, 60, who told The Kentucky Post he didn't remember how he became associated with either Wheeler or The Shelley Co.

Meister was alternately vague and argumentative when asked about his role in Shelley.

"Sometimes it's hard for me to remember what I had for breakfast," he declared.

Meister, Wheeler and Lukens' memories conflicted about what they were doing for Lester Lee and Hy-Test Coal Co.

According to Sen. Lukens, Shelley "was formed to do advertising and PR service work for Hy-Test."

Meister said, "Our primary thrust was an attempt to get a favorable financing arrangement for the country of Turkey."

Charles Wheeler said, "We didn't do anything at all."

However, all three men were in complete agreement on the amount of money Lester Lee paid them for their services, whatever they were.

Meister: "Never got paid a dime." Lukens: "I never picked up a penny from it." Wheeler: "We never did any business."

But Hy-Test office manager Fred J. Eilers Jr. didn't remember it that way. "We were just feeding them money," Eilers said of the Shelley group.

The Kentucky Post obtained copies of Hy-Test's cancelled checks and check stubs, which included five payments to Shelley totalling $28,804.

When shown copies of the checks, Lukens appeared surprised. "Jiminy Christmas," he muttered. "I never got it, I never saw anything of it. My goodness gracious."

Wheeler said he couldn't remember what the checks were for. "Maybe office furniture," he suggested.

Wheeler's name and what appears to be his handwriting appears alternately on four more checks for $24,700, made payable to "Hy-Test Field Office of Ohio." Wheeler could not explain what those checks were for or what the "field office" did.

Another Hy-Test check for $2500 marked "PR expenses" was made payable to Wheeler personally. That check was marked for deposit to the bank account of Wheeler's International Sales and Associated Enterprises, Ltd.

Meister, who told Kentucky officials last December he was executive vice-president of International Sales, said he didn't know what any of the checks were for.

In fact, all three Shelley partners maintained that, despite the contract and the checks, they performed no public relations work for Hy-Test.

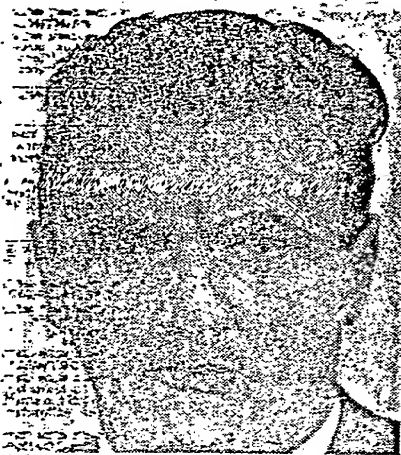

Whether or not that was the case, Hy-Test did make one public splash, and Hy-Test officers recalled The Shelley Co. arranged it.

The event was memorialized in Hy-Test's expense ledger, entries marked simply: "plane rental for Reagan trip."

NEXT: Lester Lee and the Ronald Reagan campaign.

The image shows five cancelled checks. The first check is from Hy-Test Coal Company, Lexington, Kentucky, dated 10/24/75, for $7000.00, payable to Charles Wheeler. The second check is from High-Test Appalachian Coal Co., Lexington, Kentucky, dated 10/24/75, for $2500.00, payable to Charles Wheeler. The third check is from Winters National Bank and Trust Co., Dayton, Ohio, dated 10/24/75, for $2470.00, payable to Hy-Test Field Office of Ohio. The fourth check is from First Security National Bank and Trust Co., Lexington, Kentucky, dated 10/24/75, for $2470.00, payable to Hy-Test Field Office of Ohio. The fifth check is from First Security National Bank and Trust Co., Lexington, Kentucky, dated 10/24/75, for $2470.00, payable to Hy-Test Field Office of Ohio. All checks are marked 'PAID' and have the word 'CANCELLED' stamped across them.

Five of the mysterious checks: neither Lukens nor Wheeler nor Meister could explain why these checks were sent to them. All three men said they received no money from Lester Lee for their work at The Shelley Co., but all the checks were drawn on Hy-Test bank accounts, and all were signed by Lee.

Election suit hits Reagan Hy-Test link

By Joseph P. Shapiro
Kentucky Post Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A Washington attorney filed a complaint with the Federal Election Commission this morning, asking that action be taken against Ronald Reagan for accepting illegal corporate campaign donations in 1975 from suspected Newport hit man Lester Lee.

The complaint by attorney Paul Levy is based on an investigation by The Kentucky Post last spring of a growing crime wave in the nation's coal fields.

The complaint stems from Reagan's use of a Lear jet rented by Lee, as president of Hy-Test Coal Company of Kentucky, to make appearances in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois on September 25, 1975.

The complaint also charges Reagan's campaign committee, Citizens For Reagan, and Donald E. (Buz) Lukens, Ohio state senator and former congressman. Lukens, who asked Lee for the use of the jet, was on Hy-Test's payroll at the time as a public relations consultant.

Levy is asking the commission to seek either civil or criminal penalties against Reagan, Lukens and Citizens For Reagan.

The complaint faces one serious problem even before it is filed — the three-year statute of limitations has expired on the alleged violation.

—More on Page 14K

Suit hits Reagan Hy-Test link

Levy, however, argues in his complaint that the time limitation should not take effect until June 1980, when the violation was first brought to light in The Kentucky Post article.

The election commission's general counsel's office will have five days to review the complaint. If it is prepared properly, the charges will be sent to the three parties cited. They will be allowed 15 days to respond.

The counsel's office can then make a recommendation to the commission either to pursue or to drop the complaint.

During an interview Tuesday at his Washington office, Levy, a labor lawyer, said his action was not partisan and that he was acting on his own to make the complaint because, "I'm concerned about Mr. Reagan's association with criminal elements."

Levy notes in a statement in support of his complaint that Reagan made a campaign appearance last month with Teamsters Vice President Roy L. Williams, who is said to be identified in government reports as being closely related to organized crime.

In a footnote, Levy writes that Reagan's travel with Lee and his "association with such figures as Roy Williams, raises substantial questions about Mr. Reagan's prospective willingness to support enforcement efforts against organized criminal activities, or indeed whether he may in fact be the preferred candidate of such elements."

Lee rented the Lear jet used on the 1975 trip from Sprite Flite Jets, Inc. of Lexington for $3,325 on September 25. The plane picked up Reagan that morning in Memphis and flew to Lexington, where it picked up former Gov. Louie Nunn, a founder of the then newly started Reagan campaign committee.

The coal company also was billed for a Reagan luncheon in Evansville that day.

A Reagan spokesman defended failure to report the trip to the Federal Election Commission, claiming the trip was unrelated to the Reagan campaign but was intended to help Lukens in his campaign for re-election to Ohio state senate.

Levy, however, notes that Lukens in The Kentucky Post article referred to the trip as a Reagan campaign swing.

"Moreover, no campaign stops were made in Mr. Lukens' district, and a stop was made to pick up Mr. Nunn, a former governor of Kentucky who was at the time one of the top officers of the Reagan campaign," the complaint states.

Nunn also told The Kentucky Post he considered the trip to be on Reagan's behalf.

Levy argues that Lukens knew the plane trip was an in-kind contribution from Lee's corporation and that both Reagan and Lukens would have known it should have been reported as a campaign contribution.

Note: Mr. Lukens resides at 1011 Schirm Avenue, Middletown, Ohio, and also maintains residences at 225 South Napoleon Street, Columbus, Ohio, and Apartment 615, 1000 6th Street, Southwest, Washington, D. C. He is employed by the State of Ohio, as an elected Ohio State Senator. He also is President of Growth Management Associates, Washington, D. C.; Vice President (voluntary) of the Presidential Yacht Trust, Washington, D. C.; and Vice President of Four Winds, Incorporated, San Diego, California, at Springfield, Virginia, and on August 13, 1981, received a Presidential Commission, as member of the Presidents Export Council. Investigation complete and favorable, except for the following information:

One individual, who requested confidentiality, was interviewed and while he recommended Mr. Lukens, he/she stated that Mr. Lukens might have "mob ties," based on some of his associates. A confidential source of known reliability and in a position to know advised that Mr. Lukens does not have "mob ties" to the best of his/her knowledge.

Two members of an opposing political party, personally dislike Mr. Lukens and disagree with him politically, and did not recommend. They furnished no derogatory information. A former business partner described Mr. Lukens as a terrible businessman who may owe large sums of money to several banks. He opined that these debts could cause Mr. Lukens problems in making decisions about matters that might financially benefit Mr. Lukens. He was not sure that Mr. Lukens could handle a sensitive government position especially if it might afford him personal gain. Interviews with Mr. Lukens' creditors determined he has several loans, all current and secured by proper collateral.

Interviews

An individual, who requested and was granted confidentiality, recalled that Ronald Reagan, between the California Governorship and the Presidency of the United States, helped Mr. Lukens campaign for the Ohio Senate. Mr. Reagan travelled on a plane with Mr. Lukens between campaign stops. The plane was furnished by Mr. Lukens' organization.

During that time, he/she was cautioned by someone whose judgment he/she respected that Mr. Reagan should not travel on the plane and should not be seen with "those people," meaning the people who were surrounding Mr. Lukens on that plane during those trips. He/she was advised that "those people" are associated with "the Mafia."

He/she does not recall the date of the campaign, the identity of the person making the allegation, or the identity of "those people;" and he/she has never heard anything else derogatory about Mr. Lukens and suggested that in Ohio it is not possible to run for public office without associating with such people.

He/she recommended Mr. Lukens for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

"The Kentucky Post" newspaper morgue, Cincinnati, Ohio, contained several articles printed during 1980 which pertain to Mr. Lukens and some of his business associates. Information contained therein indicates that on September 25, 1975, the Hy-Test Coal Company, Incorporated, of Kentucky, paid $3,324 to rent a plane which was used to fly several individuals including Ronald Reagan and Mr. Lukens, as well as several business associates of Mr. Lukens', from Memphis, Tennessee, to Evansville, Indiana, where the group had lunch, which was also paid for by Hy-Test Coal Company, Incorporated, of Kentucky. The trip terminated in Chicago, Illinois. The plane was piloted by Lester Lee, President of Hy-Test, Incorporated. Mr. Lee is now deceased and Hy-Test, Incorporated, has filed for bankruptcy.

The articles also indicate that Mr. Lee and some of his associates had criminal backgrounds.

A confidential source of known reliability, who is in a position to know, advised that Donald Lukens has a business called Lukens Vineyard, Incorporated, which has done very poor lately. A few months ago, Mr. Lukens approached his good friend, Jackie Presser, and requested assistance regarding his business. Supposedly, Mr. Presser attempted to assist Mr. Lukens in getting a wine account with a major food chain. This failed, however, and he/she has heard that Mr. Presser also offered Mr. Lukens financial assistance out of his own pocket but Mr. Lukens refused.

He/she characterized Mr. Lukens as an aggressive businessman, and a hustler, but a legitimate one. Mr. Lukens is a strong supporter of President Reagan and campaigned for President Reagan. He/she further characterized Mr. Lukens as a very ambitious individual who has high goals for himself within the Republican Party. Mr. Lukens is also an excellent public speaker which has gained him some respect within the Republican Party. He/she stated that as far as he/she knows, Mr. Lukens may have been a close personal friend of Jackie Presser for over ten years, but has had no financial dealings with Mr. Presser. As far as he/she knows, Mr. Lukens has no "mob" ties.

Jackie Presser, International Vice President, International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT), Cleveland, Ohio, advised he has known Mr. Lukens for seven to ten years on a business-political basis since Mr. Lukens has been a Senator in the Ohio Legislature. Mr. Presser stated his contacts with Mr. Lukens have been limited to legislative matters and Mr. Presser has had no association with Mr. Lukens.

Donald E. Lukens

Mr. Presser stated he had heard Mr. Lukens has been recently in the lobbying business in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Presser commented very favorably regarding Mr. Lukens' character, associates, reputation, and loyalty, and described Mr. Lukens as a capable, honorable man who enjoys an excellent reputation. Mr. Presser stated he would have no reason to question Mr. Lukens' loyalty to the United States Government, and he is unaware of any derogatory information concerning Mr. Lukens.

Mr. Presser stated he is unaware of any financial difficulties of Mr. Lukens and stated he has never been approached by Mr. Lukens for financial assistance. Mr. Presser stated he had no knowledge of Mr. Lukens' private business activities.

Mr. Presser stated he would highly recommend Mr. Lukens for a position of trust in the United States Government.

[redacted] Middletown, Ohio, former partner of Donald E. Lukens in Lukens Vineyard, Incorporated, Harveysburg, Ohio, advised he had known Mr. Luken for approximately thirty years. He helped Mr. Lukens campaign in about 1965 or 1966 when Mr. Lukens ran for the United States Congress and has been friends with him since that time. In 1978 he and Mr. Lukens went into partnership with each having fifty percent of Mr. Lukens' vineyards. [redacted] quit his job and was to operate the vineyard full time, plus he invested money in the venture. Mr. Lukens was to handle sales plus some manual work in the venture. According to [redacted] Mr. Lukens gave little time or effort to the vineyard, and in early 1980, Mr. Lukens advised him that he needed about three months off to campaign for Ronald Reagan. Mr. Lukens was to contribute $500 per month to the vineyard to help pay for hiring a replacement. The three months continued into the rest of 1980 and most of 1981, and Mr. Lukens paid only $1,000 during this period.

b7C

Credit and Arrest Checks

Information has been received from appropriate credit reporting agencies indicating their files contain either no record or no additional pertinent information concerning Mr. Lukens.

Information has been received from appropriate law enforcement agencies indicating their files contain no record concerning Mr. Lukens or his close relatives, except the following:

Records of the Berkley, Michigan, Police Department contain information that Donald E. Lukens was arrested May 19, 1954, for molesting. This information was obtained from an index card, the only available record, which contains no disposition. Records for the periods prior to 1965 are not maintained.

Miscellaneous

A review of Civil Docket Number C-1-79-272-MF, United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division at Cincinnati, Ohio, determined that Mr. Lukens was a defendant in a civil matter captioned "USA-Plaintiff, VS. 2.25 acres of land, more or less, situated in Warren County, State of Ohio, and Donald E. Lukens, and unknown owners, ET AL-Defendants." Complaint in condemnation was filed by Mr. Lukens on May 2, 1979, which in part, demands that property taken by the United States of America under power of eminent domain for condemnation be granted and determined that just compensation be ascertained and awarded defendants.

b6

Donald E. Lukens

A review of a suit filed in the Ohio Supreme Court determined that Mr. Lukens filed the suit based on events of the 1972 Ohio State Senatorial Elections, in which he failed to file a campaign expense report within the required forty-five day time limit. Under Ohio revised code, he was automatically suspended from seeking public office in the State of Ohio for a period of five years.

Mr. Lukens claimed in the suit that the Ohio revised code was grossly unreasonable and arbitrary, denying himself and voters the right of political expression and that the revised code was unconstitutional, violating the United States Constitution.

The Ohio Supreme Court ruled against Mr. Lukens, stating the laws were constitutional and the penalty imposed was within the legislators powers.

A review of a suit filed in the United States District Court, Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, Columbus, Ohio, determined that Mr. Lukens requested the court to judge the constitutionality of Ohio revised code and Mr. Lukens' being suspended from seeking public office.

A three judge panel found against Mr. Lukens indicating that the United States Constitution empowers the state to legislate its own laws and penalties so long as they are not in conflict with the United States Constitution; the laws in question were held constitutional.

On March 8, 1974, a bill was introduced and passed by the Ohio legislature amending the Ohio revised code concerning campaign finance expenses. The law was revised to limit the penalty to one year and nullified the five-year penalty against Mr. Lukens, and he was able to seek re-election in 1976.

A review of a libel suit filed in the Franklin County, Ohio, Court of Common Pleas on October 28, 1978, by b6 b7C against Mr. Lukens resulted in a directed verdict against the plaintiff, claimed statements made by Mr. Lukens in a press release were false and inflammatory, and resulted in mental anguish, humiliation, and loss of standing and reputation.

Donald E. Lukens

Newspaper Morgues

A review of the newspaper morgue of the Columbus, Ohio, "Dispatch," determined that an article dated April 4, 1978, contained allegations that Mr. Lukens received money from [redacted]

The article contained a denial from Mr. Lukens, but indicated, that while Mr. Lukens had never received money from [redacted] he had joined a club, not further identified in Washington, D. C., at [redacted] invitation, for which [redacted] may have paid the membership fee. No further information is contained in the article.

b7C

During the current investigation it was determined that Mr. Lukens is a member of the Capitol Hill Club and the Georgetown Club both of Washington, D. C., and that all fees and dues have been paid by Mr. Lukens using personal checks. Inquiry further determined that there is no information which would, in any way, indicate that any bills were paid by a third party, specifically [redacted]

Three additional articles of import are contained in the morgue of the Columbus, Ohio, "Dispatch." Two reported on suits filed by Mr. Lukens in the Ohio Supreme Court on February 23, 1973, and the United States District Court, Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, on September 10, 1973. These concerned Mr. Lukens' being suspended from seeking public office in the State of Ohio for a period of five years for failing to file a campaign expense report within the required time period.

The last item concerned a libel suit filed against Mr. Lukens on October 28, 1978, by [redacted] Mr. Lukens was the Republican Party nominee in the State of Ohio, and the campaign was very verbal. Mr. Lukens had made a press release, which concerned [redacted] activity involving a "driving while intoxicated charge," and [redacted] filed a libel suit. b6 b7C

The files of "The Kentucky Post" newspaper, Cincinnati, Ohio, were reviewed and copies of nine articles pertaining to Mr. Lukens and some of his business associates were obtained. Due to the complexity of these articles, they are not summarized, but rather are being set forth in their entirety, as attachments to this memorandum.

Donald E. Lukens

Agency Checks

The records of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), were reviewed and it was determined therefrom that in May, 1954, Mr. Lukens was arrested by the Berkley, Michigan, Police Department for "investigation of molesting." Mr. Lukens was dismissed because there was "no case." The records also indicate that according to police records he was previously employed as a dancing instructor by the Arthur Murray Dance Studio, no address given, and as a salesman for Fuller Brush Company and Kirby Vacuum Cleaners, while attending Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, between 1950 and 1953. In addition, at the time of his arrest, the police record contained information which indicated that Mr. Lukens was employed by Proctor and Gamble, Incorporated, Detroit, Michigan, from March, 1954, to May, 1954, as a salesman. He was, according to those records, asked to resign due to failure to respond to directions, lack of judgment, lack of dependability, lack of work, and lack of emotional balance.

FBI records also indicate that during 1978 an investigation of a bribery allegation involving [redacted] and others was conducted. During January, 1978, [redacted] testified in Seoul, Korea, that he had made two cash contributions to Mr. Lukens of $500 each. Investigation by the FBI, which included review of records of campaign contributions and expenses, failed to substantiate this allegation.
